Author

Mark Greene grew up Jewish and joyous, and celebrated becoming a Christian in his early twenties. He then spent ten years working in advertising in London and New York and loved it – facts he's still prepared to admit. After that, gripped by the Bible, he studied at the London School of Theology and went on to teach Communications and Contemporary Culture. He's now the Director of the London Institute for Contemporary Culture and speaks, tells stories, and writes widely mainly on the joys, trials and surprises of living life as a follower of Jesus in today's world. His books include Thank God It's Monday, Of love, life and café lattes and Fruitfulness on the Frontline.
